

WHITE PROPERTY OWNERS ORGANIZE

Citizens Who Sustained Losses in Rioting Join Interests

White property owners, to the number of about 25, who sustained property losses through the race riot, met in the court house last night to lay plans for recovering their interests. The first step decided upon was the forming of a permanent organization at a meeting to be held next Monday evening in the district court room to which all white owners of property will be invited. The next move will be to obtain legal information concerning the laws of responsibility attached to the riot and county in connection with the riot and to employ counsel to ascertain the proper procedure and action.

The consensus of opinion was that they have a good case, and their chance for collecting from either the city or the county or their individual neighbors have been improved by the settlement of the chief of police. The ground upon which they will enter the law courts will be that of failure to protect property during the riot on the part of the city and county. Losses sustained by the riot will be suffered by those attending the meeting, the largest losers being Redfern who valued his home at $35,000; Louis Newman, C. S. Yonkman, Terry Miller laundry, M. M. Dick, J. H. Myers. These property owners who have a right to do so will go directly to the proper city, county and state officials. C. P. Marion presided.
